

Proof of income fact sheet

Income limits are a part of the department's eligibility criteria for housing services. The department requires you to provide proof of income when lodging an application. This includes an application for public housing, bond assistance and a rental rebate.

You must declare all income for assessment for all household members aged 18 years and over.

What is household income?

Household income is the income your household receives before any tax deductions. This is the total income from all household members aged 18 years and over.

When is proof of income required?

Proof of income must be provided when you lodge an application with the department. This includes the following:

- Public housing application

You must provide proof of household income when applying for public housing. The department uses this to assess your eligibility for public housing.

- Rental rebate and continued eligibility application

The department uses your proof of income when calculating a rental rebate. Up-to-date proof ensures you are being charged the correct rent for your household. You may have to pay full rent if you do not provide up-to-date proof of your household income.

- Bond assistance application

If you apply for a bond assistance you will have to provide proof of income. It is important that the proof of income is accurate as it will affect the amount of the loan you are eligible for.

What is assessable income?

Some types of incomes are not used to calculate your eligibility. This can include one-off payments or a payment for a specific reason.

The Child Care Benefit and Isolated Child Allowance payments are examples of these types of payments.

There are many ways you can provide proof of income to the department.

See the next page for examples.

What information is required on the documentation?

The documents you give the department should:

- have your full name
- be no more than two weeks old
- be on official letterhead or remittance advice. The paying authority can send these direct to the department via post, fax or email
- contain full details of the income you receive.
